

G2P
GENOMES TO PEOPLE

INSIDER SPOTLIGHT

CONFERENCES In collaboration with Ariadne Labs we hosted the first ever International Conference on Newborn Sequencing \(ICoNS\). The event was held at the Museum of Science in Boston bringing together leading academics and industry partners to discuss the past, present, and future of newborn sequencing. Recordings are now available and stay tuned for more information regarding ICoNS23, tentatively set for the week of October 2nd in London!

BOARD MEMBER RECOGNITION Thank you to Advisory Board Member

Gaia Ceccaroli and her husband Will Burke for hosting an evening in their home that included remarks from Franca Fund co-founder D.A. Wallach and G2P Director Dr. Robert Green. The evening boasted an eclectic mix of people including UCLA scientists, film makers, actors, financial leaders, and musicians.

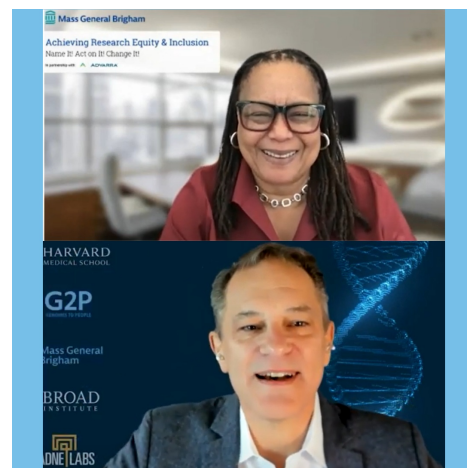

VISITING SCHOLARS We were thrilled to welcome Dr. Leroy Hood, a pioneer of systems biology whose work paved the way for the Human Genome Project, to present his work on The Human Phenome Initiative at the Broad Institute in Cambridge.

CONFERENCES Currently our team is presenting our work at the annual National Society of Genetic Counselors Academic Conference with a platform presentation by Bethany Zettler and poster presentations throughout the week.

HONORS Congratulations to Senior Genetic Counselor and Project Manager Carrie Blout Zawatsky for becoming Chair of the All of Us Genetic Counseling Resource Advisory Board, as well as the Associate Director of Project Management for the PPH Initiative at Ariadne Labs.

BLOG Addressing the lack of diversity in genomic research calls for a fundamental change within the research enterprise. In our latest blog posting, Dr. Robert Green recounts his conversation with Dr. Evelyn Hammonds, during which they discussed action toward diversifying genomics research.

Your gift makes a difference. Please consider supporting our work in the coming weeks for Giving Tuesday, November 29, 2022.

